

MARCH 13, 2023

SAFETY

MONDAY

DID YOU KNOW THAT OSHA CAN SITE YOU FOR HOUSEKEEPING VIOLATIONS?

It's true, housekeeping is a citable violation and is one of the easiest things to control in the work environment. A clean workplace that is neat and orderly shows that the facility is well run and respectable.

To avoid injuries, boost morale and avoid citations you should:

- ✓ Keep floors, walkways, passages and egress doors clear of obstructions
- ✓ When you are done using something put it away, it's as easy as remembering "Everything has a place, and everything in its place."
- ✓ If you find a spill, clean it up.
- ✓ Don't block safety equipment such as fire extinguishers, first aid kits, showers and eye wash stations
- ✓ Put flammables away when not in use
- ✓ Don't let dust, grease or debris accumulate on equipment and machinery
- ✓ Get rid of those unused items.

Keeping a clean and presentable workplace not only shows the commitment to the employees, but your overall commitment to safety.

Brought to You By:

Content Provided By:
Steve Melnick
Sr. Director of EHS

NWRA's DOT
Compliance Specialists
NWRA Endorsed Partner

© 2023 NWRA

